AN ACT to amend and re-enact section 1 of chapter xi, of the corporation code.

Be it enacted by the City Council of Alexandria, That section 1 of chapter xi, of the corporation code be amended and re-enacted so as to read as follows:

It shall be the duty of the Mayor on the 10.h day of Ju'y in every two years or as soon there-after as practicable, to advertise for bids for re-moving the night soil of the city of Alexandria for two years from the first day of August thence ensuing. The contract for the removal of such night soil shall be awarded to the highest responsible bidder, who will use in such work the improved apparatus known as the odorless ex cavating machine, giving preference to any re-sponsible resident of this city who shall offer to introduce the same whether his bid shall be the highest or not; and if no person shall offer to use the same, then the contract shall be given to the highest responsible bidder. The person to whom the contract is awarded shall in all respects comply with the laws of the corporation, and shall be subject to a fine of $10 for every violation thereof. The Mayor shall proceed under the law immediately upon its passage.
This act shall be in force from its passage.

In compliance with the above act which passed the city Council August 16, and approved August 17, 1831, I will receive scaled proposals at my office 27 King street until the 25th day of August 1881, at 12 o'clock m., at which time I will award the contract. I will require bond and security in the sum of five hundred dollars for the faithful performance of duty, and reserve the right to reject any and all bids. The suc-cessful contractor will 'this year' enter upon his duties on the 1st day of September, 1881, and hold the position until the 1st day of August 1883.

Knox at St. Andrews.

Good men who have to suffer for the truth they love and believe in are always terribly in carnest. Under the sharp trials that discipline them their convictions are made so intense as almost to amount to inspiration.

There never lived a man to whom the pure religion of the Gospel was more a tremendous reality than it was to John Koox.

Occe the chaplain of a king, he fell under fierce persecution for his adherence to the reformed faith, and in the middle of the sixteenth century became an exile from his native land. Sentence of death was passed upon bim, and though this was never executed, he was consigned to the French galleys, a condition of slavery that made life a burden. Queen Mary Stuart of Scotland was then spending her time in France, and in the not unfrequent trips of the galleys betwen that country and her turbulent kingdom in the north, the slave John, chained to the oar in his prisonship, could eatch tautal z og glimpses of the shores of home. These brief and cruel visions embittered his sufferings, and might have tortured to desperation a less her is soul, for there seemed no hope that he would ever be free to set foot on his own land again. But hope did not die in the breast of brave John

Oue day, word cut with hardship and exposure, and sick almost unto death, while the galleys were lying outside the Firth of Tay, an officer supported him on deck and pointed to the city of St. Androws.

"Do you know that place?" he saked, believing the poor man to be dying.

"Yes," answered John, feebly but confidently, "I see the spire of the cathedral, where God first opened my wouth to his glorg. I shall not dis. I shall live to preach his truth in that pulpit again."

The prisoner did not dic, but his nearness to death seemed to have given him a flish of prophecy. Fifteen years passed, and John Knox trod he soil of Scotland a free man. The unhappy

Queen Mary was oceher throne again, and he was the man of all others in the world whom them there he gave out that he should preach in the outhedral on the following Sabbath.

The commander of the queen's army stationed there threatened his life, and his friends tried to dissuade him. But he replied in the spirit of Luther on going to his trial at Worms: "I desire not to show any contempt to right authority; but I am God's minister, and it was here he first bade me preach. He hath dealt wonderfully to bring me back, and I cannot give way to them now who have so long shut my mouth. As to my life, that is in God's keeping, and he will protect his own." His brethren caught his courage and rallied around him. When the Sabbath day came the bold reformer stood up in the pulpit and preached with more than his old clequence and power. Not a hand was lifted against him. bath and the two following he presched in the same place, and by that time many who had been his enemiss became his friends.

Bis set was itself a grand triumph; the result of it was a grander one, - Companion. THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.-The work men at the monument have finished course 220 giving the monument a beight equal to that of Busker H.ll monument. The actual height from the ground is 237 feet, the terrece about the base of the monument being 17 fect in height. The workmen are now putting in one of the stair platforms, which are located 10 feet spart, all the way up from the base. The granite is beginning to arrive now in such quantities that it is hoped there will be no further delay mere this year, if there is no delay to the ar-rival of material. That will raise the monment to a height of 262 feet, and the new portion will represent one half of all the material required to complete the structure from the point where the work was resumed last year. The work is now gong on ratifly, with the ail of the facili ties afforded by modern appliances. Engineers say that had the work been pushed forward with none but the methods and appliances used at the time it was begun-bois it g stone up the outside of the shafe-it would have required : quarter of a century to complete it, it it ever culd have been completed at all.
